

Contracts are present in day-to-day business activities both as a means to enter into a transaction and to manage a project.

We see that as a legal issue of paramount importance to our clients. Contracts are necessary not only to enter into and to implement transactions but also to ensure legal compliance, minimize risks and conflict, enhance predictability and protect the client's interests, contributing non-stop to client growth.

This is yet another area in which CMA advises clients in several industries, offering mainly the following services:

- Negotiating and drafting local or international commercial contracts, including distribution and agency contracts and contracts for the sale of goods and services;
- Advice on credit securities, import and export procedures, as well as on local and international regulations;
- General legal guidance to help local or foreign companies navigate the regulation of the domestic and international trade in goods, services and technology.
